Ongoing activity: Holiday hunger in England 'is a moral outrage' - Sky News

- An All Party Parliamentary Group Inquiry led by Frank Field MP launched 23rd February is under way into the numbers of British children going hungry in holidays.
- Unprecedented numbers of free meals have been given out to children in deprived areas this half term in an ongoing effort to combat hunger in the UK.
- LACA survey to our members to gather our national picture to support the Inquiry.
- Case studies from Derbyshire, Plymouth and Wales.

Hot off the Press...Schools to receive £415 million from sugar levy

- Schools are set to receive £415 million generated from the soft drinks levy to help pupils benefit from healthier and more active lifestyles, the Education Secretary Justine Greening has announced.
- Greening, said: "Schools can really help our children get a healthy start in life from exercise and sport, and also from knowing what a healthy diet means. It's not only good for them while they're in education, but the health and wellbeing benefits can last a lifetime.
- "That's why we're investing £415 million in facilities to support sports, after-school activities and promoting healthy eating, so we can secure the future health of our young people."
- Primary, secondary and sixth form colleges will benefit from the money, which will be available to schools in the 2018 to 2019 financial year.
